

Meetups and Local Groups

The Sleeter Group publishes a list of Meetups and local groups to which our members belong. We even sponsor or manage several of these groups. Meetups and local groups bring the dispersed community of accounting solutions consultants together by providing a “live” networking and learning experience, thus enabling a more fulfilling and enriching professional experience.

Join or Start a Meetup

Want to join or start a Meetup or local group in your area? To join a local group, visit the Web page below.

We offer organizer startup help, as well as coaching, content, speakers and more to local groups that register with us. To start a local group:

- Become a member of the Sleeter Group Consultants Network, if you are not one already.
- Inform us that you would like to start a local group, and that you wish for it to be a part of The Sleeter Group’s local groups sponsorship program.
- We will help you recruit members, provide ideas on finding venues to hold meetings, offer content and speakers you can use for group meetings, list your group on our Local Groups page, and feature your group in our outbound communications.

What do Group Leaders do?

- Tap into our rich resources of content and speakers. Speakers are available live and/or virtually (using Skype, GoToMeeting, etc.).
- Arrange your selected speakers’ participation in your meetings directly with them.
- Alert us about the details of your meetings so we can include them on our public calendar.
- Offer your members opportunities to participate in other Sleeter Group programs and services at a discount.

“The Meetup groups for QuickBooks & Business Coaches has definitely brought me out of my isolation. For too many years, I worked by myself with almost no contact with other QuickBooks consultants or QuickBooks users other than my own clients. I was stagnant, but now I feel connected to my QuickBooks community, and I have learned a tremendous amount from others, which has positively added to my bottom line.”
